DR. AND MRS. SMITH HOSTS.

The personnel of the Thursday Bridge Club and a large number of additional guests enjoyed several hours of bridge, Wednesday evening, with Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith as hosts. Tables for bridge were arranged in the living room and on the veranda, which were decorated with masses of cannas, zinnias and Shasta daisies.

Club prizes were won by Mrs. T. B. Knopp and Dr. H. J. Meyer for high scores. Guests similarly rewarded were Mrs. A. H. Schweers and Judge R. J. Noonan. Consolation prizes were given Mrs. L. J. Brucks and Mr. Horace Bradley.

The Crusaders' platform is as follows:

The Crusaders stand for true temperance.

The Crusaders are unalterably opposed to the saloon.

The Crusaders believe that the control of liquor traffic in Texas should be vested in the state government rather than in private or political hands. The Crusaders will work towards this goal and believe that the most practical method to accomplish this is:

1. Repeal of the present enforcement acts—The Volstead Act, the Jones law, the Dean Law and the Texas Constitutional Amendment.

2. Passage by the state of laws which will control the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors along lines best suited to the problems of our individual state.

3. Federal legislation to protect states which may desire to remain dry from liquor importations.

4. Repeal of the National Prohibition Amendment and the Prohibition Amendment to our state constitution, which any plan of prohibition reform makes essential, so that no future Congress may nullify these acts.

The Crusaders are a national body and are doing a powerful work in breaking down the misguided policies behind which racketeering is building its fortifications and endangering the very foundations of organized society.

In its stand for temperance, and its efforts for clearing away all the obstacles and rubbish that prohibition interposes in the way of building to that end, the lone wolf of this great moral weekly is glad to join "paws" with the Crusaders.

Mr. Bacon was accompanied by Messrs. J. B. Wofford, John La Field and H. C. Ellis, three of his fellow workers.

COBBLERS WIN AND LOSE.

In the last two games, the Cobblers drove an even bargain by defeating the Bees and losing to the Canaries.

With the aid of a borrowed catcher, the Shoemakers nosed out the Bees in the last inning, 3-2. Hits were scarce on both sides, with Barry and Laughlin's each getting two each.

The Canaries took advantage of Cobblers' errors to win Tuesday's game, 9-5. Short and Laughlin's lead the losers with two hits each, while Grant and Lamio aided their team in a like manner.

The question of borrowing players seems to be the big argument now. There is no reason why the managers cannot settle this matter to everybody's satisfaction, for as long as a team may use outside players with no definite restriction there will be the useless petty bickering. The (12) Warranty Deed from Emilie E. Gilbert, a feme sole, and widow of Edward F. Gilbert, Jr., dec'd. Carrie Gilbert Clifford, a feme sole, Edward S. Gilbert, joined herein by his wife, Mary Lou Gilbert, to Harley E. Woodward.

That on such date, May 1, 1933, plaintiff was in possession of such premises, and afterward on to-wit: the 10th day of May, 1933, the defendants unlawfully entered upon and dispossessed him of such premises and since which time said defendants have withheld from him the possession thereof and are claiming some character of interest in said property.

Defendants have occupied and used said premises under such unlawful possession and have thereby damaged plaintiff in the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, in which amount by virtue of such wrongs, defendants are justly indebted to plaintiff; but although repeated demand for payment thereof has been made of defendants by plaintiff, defendant have failed and refused and still fail and refuse to pay the same, to plaintiff's damage in the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars.

Plaintiff further shows to the Court that he has had and held peaceable, continuous and adverse possession under title and or color of title from and under the State of Texas, of the lands and tenements described herein for more than three years next preceding the commencement of this suit.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff claims said property by the three year Statute of Limitation, as defined in the Civil Statutes of the State of Texas.

This plaintiff further avers that he is the owner of and entitled to possession of said above described land and improvements thereon by virtue of conveyances made to him and to his predecessors in title by, through, and under whom he holds, claiming the same under deeds duly registered and has had peaceable, continuous and adverse possession of the land, tenements and improvements, cultivating, using and enjoying same and paying all taxes due thereon as they accrued for a period of more than five years next before Defendants' cause of action, if any they have, arose and next preceding the filing of this suit and this he is ready to verify.

Therefore, plaintiff says that he holds title to said property under the five year Statute of Limitation as defined in the Civil Statutes of the State of Texas.

This plaintiff represents and shows to the Court that he claims to have good and perfect right and title to the land, premises and improvements herein sued for, has had continuous and adverse possession thereof, enjoying, using and cultivating the same each year for a period of ten years after the defendants' cause of action, if any they have, accrued, and before the commencement of this suit, such possession being taken and held under written memoranda of title specifying the boundaries of the tract of land and duly recorded in the Deed Records of Medina County, Texas, and this he is ready to verify.

This plaintiff represents and shows to the Court that he claims to have good and perfect right and title to the land, premises and improvements herein sued for, has had continuous and adverse possession thereof, enjoying, using and cultivating the same each year for a period of twenty-five years after the defendants' cause of action, if any they have, accrued, and before the commencement of this suit, such possession being taken and held under written memoranda of title specifying the boundaries of the tract of land and duly recorded in the Deed Records of Medina County, Texas, and this he is ready to verify.

Plaintiff further says that the defendants' and each of them and the unknown heirs of each of said defendants and the unknown heirs of the unknown heirs of each of said defendants claim some character of interest or title to said above described property, the nature and character of their claim thereto, if any they or either of them have, being unknown to this plaintiff, but that if said defendants, or any or either of them ever had or held any title or possession of said above described land, that all such interest as they, or either of them may have had, held or claimed, has long since been barred by the three, five, ten and twenty-five year statutes and that the claim of said Defendants and each of them, constitute a cloud upon the title of this Plaintiff, which he is entitled to have removed by decree of this Court.

Wherefore, he pleads and relies upon said Statutes of three, five, ten and twenty-five years, and twenty-five years limitation respectively as defined in Articles 5507, 5509, 5510 and 5519, respectively, of the Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas, in bar of any right which said defendants, or either of them, may have.

Therefore, Plaintiff prays judgment of the Court that Defendant be cited as required by law for the proper time and as often as may be necessary to appear and answer herein, and that an attorney ad litem be appointed by the Court for the Defendants cited herein by publication and that Plaintiff have judgment for the title and possession of the above described land and premises and for the cancellation of all clouds on the title of Plaintiff to said land, and for restitutioin of same, if such be necessary, and that Plaintiff have his costs in this behalf expended for such other and further relief, both general and special, in law and in equity, as plaintiff might be justly entitled.

HEREIN FAIL NOT, but have you before said Court on the said first day of next term thereof this will with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in the town of Hondo, this the 14th day of June A. D. 1933.

At EMIL BRITSCH,
Clerk of District Court in and for Medina County, Texas.

Came to hand June 14th A. D. 1933, at 2 o'clock P. M., and publication of the above Citation ordered made in the Hondo Anvil Herald.

GRASSHOPPERS THREATEN PARTS OF EAST TEXAS.

Grasshoppers in immense numbers are developing in portions of East Texas, especially along the Brazos and Trinity rivers and their tributaries, reports R. R. Reppert, entomologist of the Extension Service of Texas A. and M. College. County agents are making close observations and preparing farmers to fight the pest with poison bran mash where damage is threatened, he says.

Poison bran mash, effective in control of grasshoppers or cut worms, is made by mixing together dry, 20 pounds bran and one pound Paris green or white arsenic; and to this adding a liquid mixture made of the juice and ground rind of 6 lemons, 2 quarts of cane or sorghum molasses, one pound of salt, and about 6 gallons of water. This is enough for covering 5 acres, Mr. Reppert says, and should be broadcast late in evening or early in morning over the infested part of crop or bordering grassland. He warns against placing it in piles or lines, and against substituting calcium arsenate or lead arsenite for the poisons mentioned.

It Takes More Than Salts, Calomel, Mineral Waters, Oils, or Laxative Pills To Arouse a Sluggish Liver

They Give Only Temporary Relief From Constipation and Biliousness. Because They Have No Effect Whatever on the Liver or Its Production of Bile.

Bile is nature's laxative and your stomach and bowels require at least one quart of fresh bile every day to keep them clean, pure, free from fermentation, gas, and disease germs.

When your liver becomes sluggish the bile stagnates and stops flowing freely. The contents of your bowels become the breeding place for germs and poisons; your food does not digest—it just ferments and decays in the bowels. The blood absorbs these poisons and you suffer from constipation, gas, sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness, and sour stomach.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills remove the cause of this condition in nature's way. They are not like any other medicine you have ever taken. They are so gentle, thorough and natural.

A hundred weekly papers in Texas, the distinction which the business men through their home-town paper, are brought to San Marcos is something of which they can be justly proud. And we say this advisedly, as we are convinced that Editor Miller will gladly acknowledge that his success, however well he has done it in service to his town, would not have been possible without the general patronage the business men in this town have accorded his paper. Along all this depression that has just squeezed the life out of many of the country's weekly papers, to ward off appearances the Record's name of advertising has been little affected. When these business men spent their money with their paper, they were not buying so much paper and ink; they were buying an extra special high quality service and one that brought distinction to their home town—both sales that cannot be counted in dollars and cents but which would have been beyond attainment without the patronage. Congratulations all around.

The 26th of August is only a few days off. There will at that time be one of the most important elections ever held in the history of the State. Are you posting yourself on the great issues involved? Every voter should qualify himself to cast an intelligent ballot. Then vote his sentiments according to his own enlightened conscience. In no other way can the great inheritance of popular government be properly safeguarded.

THE HOUSE OF MORG.
A great is the house of one J. P. Morgan. An; built on his greed and his gold—alas, it is but a gruesome morgue where Liberty is laid out cold!

IS NEVER EASY.
To forgive a wrong—but it is always best! To acknowledge an error—but it is best to do! To labor without hope of reward—no reward is never hopeless until give up!

Or seldom is, to practice what you teach—but good practice is the best teaching!

To keep up your courage when defeated by friends—but it is then that courage is most needed!

To sing when you are sad—but the sweet music often comes from a broken heart!

To suffer and be strong—but it is the easiest way to bear the burden!

AND SUCH IS FAME.

From the New Braunfels Herald's "Fifteen Years Ago Column" we clip the following:

On June 14, 1918: Messrs. Fletcher and Judge Ed Kone, both representing the Department of Agriculture spoke at the Court House Thursday night. G. F. Oheim, in well chosen words, introduced the speakers."

The Judge spoken of in the above was the late Judge Ed R. Kone, for many years Judge of Hayes County, New Braunfels, before serving the state as Commissioner of Agriculture, and the "Messrs. Fletcher" was none other than the present hammer of this column.

And such is fame!

STILL ON THE JOB.

Austin, Texas, June 19—Contributions to the deficit continue to pour into State Democratic headquarters in Austin, despite the absence in Washington, of Roy Miller, director, and Frank Scofield, financial director of the state organization.

Miller and Scofield are in Washington, where they are presenting to the administration the claims of Tex as Democrats for federal appointments. Texas is beginning to receive the reward for party service of the first rank earned in last fall's campaign, when Texas wrote up the largest majority and contributed the second largest amount of any state to the Democratic National campaign fund.

R. W. Morrison of San Antonio was elected as one of the six members of the American Delegation to the Economic Convention at London. Morrison is recognized as one of the ablest business statesmen in America. Though a resident of Texas, his interests are wide and he has had important commercial dealings in nearly every important country in the world. Other Texans recently honored by the administration is Colonel Alvin M. Owles, who has been named Minister to Roumania, a highly important diplomatic post in the historic Balkan region that has incurred so many wars.

The selection of Robert G. Caldwell of Rice Institute at Houston, as Minister of Portugal, was also very pleasing to the Texas Democratic organization. A number of other Texans are under consideration for important posts under the administration and they are being supported by Miller and Scofield.

Texas has assumed a $75,000 quota for the Democratic National Committee. This is ten per cent of the total deficit, which is believed to be a fair proportion for a state that will be so generously recognized by the administration in the distribution of party honors.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Medina County, Greeting:

We are trying out the new Glen-dale Gooseberry. We do not have any hopes much for this berry and even if we do raise it it does not make much better pies than our green mustard grapes. But the Latham raspberries are proving good here. In the case of all other raspberries we have ever tried they die back during the winter. The Latham went through the last winter and promises a nice crop. I hope this berry proves to be a success here in the South and I feel sure it will. The raspberry is one of the finest of all berries where it does well.

WILL ROGERS HAS EMOTIONAL ROLE IN FILM.

Heart-deep Drama as Well As Chuckles in "Too Busy To Work"

Though he is known the world over as America's greatest exponent of wit, humor and homespun philosophy, Will Rogers is said to qualify as a highly emotional actor as well as a comedian in "Too Busy To Work," his latest Fox picture opening its engagement at the Colonial Theatre tonight.

Rogers portrays the role of a wandering, happy-go-lucky ne'er-do-well, who returning from the war, tramps from place to place in search of his wife and daughter and the man who stole them while he was in the trenches. Eventually, he finds the daughter and the man, but discovers that his wife is dead.

Revealing himself to the man, but refusing to disclose his identity to his wife for fear of ruining her happiness, he tolerantly fails to take advantage of an opportunity for revenge and the climax finds him doing the reverse of the conventional thing.

In his role of a modern Enoch Arden, Rogers is said to have many touching scenes with both his daughter and the "other man". Marion Nixon, dainty and beautiful, plays the role of the daughter, dividing the love interest with Dick Powell who was widely acclaimed for his performance in "Blessed Event."

Frederick Burton appears as the father and others in the cast are Constantine Romanoff, Douglas Cosgrove, Louise Beavers and Jack O'Hara.

The picture was directed by John G. Blyston, who also directed Rogers in "So This is London".

that I was so lucky because I was kind to the poor orphaned calf, Dixie, The Flower of My Garden. We saw a dead cow on the side of the road so we walked over there and found it to be Tip. His little calf was lying by her side almost starved. We picked up the little fellow, and hauled him home in the wagon.

I named him Dixie, The Flower of My Garden. Then I put him with his mother who had a little calf about the same age. She adopted him all right. When he was about six months old the old cow stepped on one of his toes and pulled the toe off. Then I had to treat him five times a day. But finally he got well again, and he still was The Flower of My Garden. Then he did well until he was about four months old.

During the day I kept him in the field with some other calves. One Sunday noon as Uncle Henry and I were coming home from the ranch we passed by the oat field. We saw a old gray mule shaking something around. So we stuck the spurs into horses and ran up there kicking-split. When we got there he had my Dixie by the neck. We ran a mile away but the poor calf was cut up. We packed him home. Then I had another job. I had to feed him with a bottle until his neck got well, but he still was The Flower of My Garden.

One evening just as I was feeding him, Mr. Merritt came down to help get doctor a sick animal. As he asked me I said: "Mr. Merritt, what do you think about my Dixie?" "He said, "knock him in the neck and feed him to the dogs," and pinned as he went on. But I won't say what my thoughts were. So when I got through with the sick animal, he came to me, and said: "Say, Ralph, do you know this is sure a framed calf. If you give him proper care and feed, and can get him to grow he will make you a real club calf. Keep him and some time later we will see him up again."

Then I built a little house for the Flower of My Garden; kept him in there at night and ran him in field during the day until about October 1, 1932, then I kept him in the lot of grain and hay. And, oh! how the flower did grow. On September 1, it weighed 400 lbs. I gave him proper care and feed, and he always had a good appetite.

No matter where he was, if I walked out and called him he would either answer me or get up and come to me. I've often wondered if I'll ever see another calf like Dixie, The Flower of My Garden.

On March 18, 1933, I loaded him in the truck and hauled him to the saw. As we passed through town I weighed him. His weight was 925 lbs.

I spent the day in the stall with The Flower of My Garden. When the judging came off he still remained The Flower of My Garden.

When they judged for Grand Champion, he still was The Flower of My Garden. And when he went into the auction ring he was again The Flower of My Garden. Then we loaded him to San Antonio, and after standing all day until ten o'clock at night, he only lost 5 lbs. His weight was 920 lbs. That shows you what a well finished calf will do.

After he was weighed up, I parted with The Flower of My Garden.

This is all true as I don't want to boast. I am sure God helped me and

R. L. Pettus of Goliad county says that removing the tails from his old sheep with the Burdizzo pincers is a neat and humane job, there being very little loss of blood and inconvenience to the sheep. The sheep are much more sanitary and surer breeders. Mr. Pettus says he will never have a tailed sheep on his place again, for very often they are a source of trouble and worry from screw worms getting in the wool around the tail where it is long and dangling. Using the Burdizzo pincers on his lambs has also set his mind at ease, for he says a year or so ago his men castrated a bunch of lambs with the knife, and about 3-4 of them died. After using the pincers twice with excellent results, he is ready to buy one and use them altogether on his lambs, kids, and calves, especially during fly time.

A 15-year-old boy's club training saved a herd of cattle and prevented the spread of blackleg in Houston county, according to County Agent C. E. Bowles. Earl Dickey, member of the Percilla 4-H Club, upon examining a sick calf and another already dead belonging to Homer and Jim Adams, opined that it was blackleg, and this was confirmed by the county agent who was immediately called in. Neither of the owners of the herd had had any experience with this disease. A demonstration of the method of immunizing calves against blackleg followed with Earl in charge of the hypodermic syringe.

CLARIDGE'S COUNTRY TALK

BY R. R. CLARIDGE

It has been some years since I roamed the hills and vales and mesquite grass plains of western Texas, the memory of which seems like a most pleasant dream. In and out of the papers, I used to scold the irrigationists for using too much water, and I wonder if they still do that. From what little I hear or read about irrigation, I am led to believe that they are learning the better to control the application of water, not only for the saving of waste of same, but as well for the good of soil and crops.

—CCT—

Since I first began to run 'round and take notice of black waxy central Texas, the wonderfully productive soil of that section does not yield nearly so well as in the way-back time; and there has been talk that it is "gettin' wore out," where long in cultivation. The weakness is not caused so much by lack of nitrogen, the prime factor in crop production, as in loss of humus, the moisture-holding content. And since, of late, the farmers are working into stock-farming, to the extent they do right along, they will be less hurt by dry spells.

—CCT—

For a long time, a few men have made a fight against the market scheme by which the farmers have been robbed, "a comin' and a goin'", but it has been a nice lady-like cat-fight, to which even the farmers seem to have paid little attention. It's going to take a bear-fight to stir them up; and fighting mad, I'm going to make it, loaded to the

COTTON-LOUSE CONTROL.

By B. R. Cead, Principal Entomologist, J. W. Folsom, Senior Entomologist, and R. C. Gaines, Associate Entomologist, Division of Cotton Insects, Bureau of Entomology.

The cotton louse, or aphid (Aphis gossypii Glover), has long been known as a pest of cotton. For many years it attracted attention, primarily early in the season, causing damage to young plants in the seedling stage or shortly thereafter. This damage is usually most prevalent in a period of cool weather, and the lice disappear as the weather becomes warmer and the cotton increases in size. The actual loss from such an attack is usually not serious enough to justify direct control measures, as it consists mainly of retardation of growth and possibly some loss of stand, but in some instances this is important enough to warrant control measures.

Louse Infestation on Fruiting Cotton.

During recent years there has been an increased interest in louse control, owing to more frequent occurrences of severe infestation in the latter part of the season when the cotton is fruiting heavily. This has been complicated further by the extensive use of calcium arsenate against the boll weevil and the fact that, under certain combinations of circumstances, calcium-arsenate dusting may increase the louse infestation in the field, largely by killing certain insect enemies of the louse. Experiments have shown that lice usually do not appear in injurious numbers until after at least three applications of calcium-arsenate dust have been made during a period in which little or no rain has fallen, and then only when certain species of parasites which are destroyed by the dust applications are the main natural factor in the control of the louse. Under such circumstances, the extent of these outbreaks varies with the locality and the season. A survey conducted over a series of years throughout the territory where commercial dusting is generally practiced muzzle with all sorts of close-range ammunition. While Fletcher's Farming is steadily gaining circulation over the state and the South, the same is confined mainly to western and central Texas, and I want it to get loose more widely before I—well, before there is "blood an' hair an' the ground tore up." It is a monthly, costs but little, but unlike a lot of farm papers, you will know and care when it comes.

—CCT—

I see by this morning's paper that a hundred lower valley farmers that is, "supposed" to be farmers, a most reasonable supposition—took a couple of local truck-buyers from the hotel to the brush and made them dance to the music of a cow-boy quartet or something equally conducive to high stepping, the same applied to their gable-ends with more regard to how high they jumped, than the quality of the music; of which, one kind or another, the air was no doubt full. Reminds me to suggest that if the farmers were organized to an extent that would render them independent of the local buyers, it would go far toward saving money for the growers, the posterior anatomy of the swindlers, and a character of music calculated to scare a bunch of "havilenes" out of Hidalgo county. Salmon, Texas.

P. S. I had some experience some years ago with local buyers of watermelons in car-lot, but it did not end so tragically or musically as the lower valley episode. They got the best of me the first year but next year nit.

Showed that such louse infestation occurred in less than 5 per cent of the cases where calcium-arsenate dust was applied.

When an infestation occurs late in the season it is shown by the curling and shedding of leaves, and, in case of very heavy infestation, by the fact that the lower portions of the plant become covered with the sticky honeydew thrown off by the lice. This honeydew in many instances supports a growth of black mold, which gives the lower stems and bolls a smutty appearance. Usually the most serious financial loss from louse infestation is in the lowering of the grade of the staple due to the staining and gumming effect of this honeydew. The actual loss in crop is usually deceiving and is much more apparent than real. However, cases of extreme infestation may cause reduction in yield, and records show that such losses amount to an average of about 50 pounds and a maximum of 100 pounds of seed cotton per acre.

How to Control the Cotton Louse.

Where a louse infestation has developed to the point of injury, control can be accomplished if the following rules are followed carefully:

Nicotine dust should be used.

This dust should be mixed at home and should not be allowed to stand more than 48 hours before use.

Applications should be made only when the air is calm and there is a good prospect that it will remain calm for at least 30 minutes after the application. This is of the utmost importance, as applications during a breeze are wasted. High temperature and dry foliage are favorable to a good kill.

One application, made under proper conditions, will usually be sufficient for commercial control, but additional applications should be made later whenever injury threatens.

Make applications with the same cotton-dusting machinery as used for boll-weevil dusting.

If an application of calcium arsenate is needed for weevil control at the same time as the louse application, the calcium arsenate should be used as a carrier for the nicotine.

In other instances a good grade of hydrated lime or air-slaked lime should be used as a carrier.

To make this nicotine dust, thoroughly mix 100 pounds of the carrier with 6 1-4 pounds or 5 pints of commercial 40 per cent nicotine-sulphate solution. Apply the dust at a rate of slightly heavier than would be used on cotton of the same size for boll-weevil control. This means about 6 to 9 pounds per acre.

How to Mix the Dust.

The main thing to be remembered is that the success of the whole operation depends upon thorough mixing. Commercial concerns selling nicotine-sulphate solution furnish instructions for making different types of home-mixing devices which can be constructed at very small cost. One of the most satisfactory methods of mixing the dust is by the use of a home-made ball mill. This can be made from a 50-gallon vinegar barrel, and stones (about the size of hens' eggs) can be substituted for balls. A section about 6 by 14 inches is cut in the side of the barrel, and the pieces taken out are fastened together with pieces of half-inch strap iron on the inner side to constitute the door. The door is hinged and equipped with a fastener. The edges of the opening or of the lid are padded with any convenient material in order to prevent leakage. A piece of pipe 1 inch in diameter and 10 inches long is attached to the exact center of each end of the barrel by means of a flanged bushing to form the axle upon which the barrel revolves. A crank made from material 2 by 4 by 15 inches is attached to one end of the axle, and a short piece of half-inch pipe set at right angles to the arm serves as a handle. The barrel is mounted on a stand which may conveniently be made from two trestles about 36 inches high, with a notch in which the axle rests cut in the top of each trestle. To hold the barrel steady, with the opening conveniently placed for putting into it the stones and the material to be mixed, a bolt is passed through a hole in the trestle and into a suitable opening in the support for the flange on the end of the barrel. The barrel can be mounted on other types of stands, but should in any case be high enough from the floor to permit ease of operation and the ready placement and removal of a container to catch the dust when the ball mill is emptied. This container should be at least 3 feet long, 2 feet wide, and 1 foot deep. A coarse screen should be placed over the container to separate the stones from the dust. Use one-half pound of stones to each pound of dust. After the nicotine is added, close the lid of the mill tightly and turn the barrel for five minutes at the rate of about 35 turns a minute. The rate of turning should not be greater than this, and the time in turning should not be less than five minutes in order to assure a proper mixing of the dust. When the dust is taken from the mill it should be poured through the coarse screen into a box or other container to separate the stones. If any dust sticks to the sides of the barrel it can be removed by tapping the barrel on the outside. If the dust is not to be used shortly after it is prepared, it should be stored in air-tight containers, such as metal drums or lard tins. Dust which is being prepared for immediate use can be placed in paper lime sacks and hauled to the field.

Another method is to mix the material by rolling on the ground drums of dust to which the proper quantity of nicotine has been added, after putting stones (as in the ball mill), or sections of ordinary water pipe from 1 to 2 inches in diameter and approximately 2 inches shorter than the length of the barrel, in the mixture to assist in stirring. This rolling can be done by making a mule-drawn frame sled so arranged that the drum fits into the opening between the runners and is held by cross-pieces so as to allow it to roll on the ground as it is pulled along. When stones or other foreign objects are put into the dust to help in mixing, extreme care should be taken to see that these

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE JUNE HOSTESS.

By Juliette Frazier.

The warm June days with clear blue skies and golden sunlight smiling upon a riot of flowers everywhere seem to belong particularly to brides and girl graduates. The hostess may plan a variety of good times this month when roses are abloom. Outdoor parties begin this month in real earnest. Afternoon tea parties, and luncheon entertainments may both partake of an outdoor atmosphere, even if the actual repast is held within doors.

A shower of roses is sure to be appreciated by the bride, especially if after the honeymoon she is expecting to settle down in a little cottage of her own. Use roses for all the decorations. If the bride is a blonde, delicate pink ones, but if she is a brunette, some deep pink or red ones, and if she should have auburn tresses, the copper shades and yellow tea roses would be very suitable.

Above the table from the ceiling may be suspended a parasol of roses. This is made by cutting the handle off a discarded light colored parasol, and covering it entirely inside as well as outside, with paper roses which are pinned closely together. Garlands of paper roses may extend from this parasol to each of the four corners of the room.

Use a heavy white cloth for the dining table and pin on a border of paper roses. A delightful centerpiece may be made by placing in the center of the table two dolls about ten inches high, dressed as bride and groom, standing beneath an arch of roses and surrounded by a wreath of delicate ferns and rose buds. The arch is made by twining roses around a piece of curved wire which when placed in position should extend at least four inches above the dolls' heads. Each end of the wire is slipped into a large empty spool which has been given a coat of green paint. Narrow ribbons, the same color as the roses run from this centerpiece, being fastened to the wreath which lies flat upon the table, to each plate and are tied to prim little nose-gays of tiny rosebuds and sprays of ferns. Each of these tiny bouquets is slipped into a stiff paper lace collar and are fastened by a tiny bow of ribbon to the placecards.

The list of suitable gifts is large, and may include any of the following items, and many not mentioned here, but it should be remembered that this is a rose shower, and while some of the usual gifts, such as glassware, china, table linens, sheets, pillow slips, towels, scarfs, sofa pillow tops, etc., may be given, all of these should feature the rose design or be in the chosen color. Wax roses in bowls of lusterware, bouquets of paper roses to help brighten the bride's home when real roses are unobtainable will also be appreciated. And last, but not least, if the bride is planning on having a garden, present her with some rose bushes to plant in it, including some hedge rose, and some climbing varieties to train against the porches of the new home. These will produce enjoyment and pleasure probably after all the other gifts are worn out, broken or discarded. There are several dwarf varieties of roses which can be grown indoors. Among these are the Japanese and the fairy roses, which, when attractively potted, make most charming gifts.

A pretty way to present the rose bushes, which of course, are wrapped

The mother and baby are not alone in having special days to be honored, for the lovely bride and the sweet girl graduate have theirs as well, and it lasts a whole month long. What month could be more appropriate for the loveliness to be showered alike upon bride and graduate than the month of June? Mrs. Frazier grasps fully the opportunities for the hostess to be found in this month and gives us a double suggestion, first for entertaining the bride and then the graduate, either high school or college. Such parties will always be sweet memories to those honored and a discriminating hostess desires that that memory be perfect and that herself hold a choice, warm spot in the heart of the bride and the graduate.

H H

Just like a girl who must have a new dress in the spring, so does a kitchen need brightening and dressing up. And like the chips still flying from the old block, Mary Louise Frazier, already introduced to our readers as Mrs. Frazier's daughter, does the "dressing-up act" of what she terms the "workshop of the separately in florist paper and tied with pretty ribbons, is in a large basket with curved handle which is surmounted by a large bow of green ribbon.

And don't forget that when the bride works in her rose garden she will require garden aprons and hats, gloves, flower gathering scissors, pruning shears, etc.

And now just a few suggestions to the hostess who is planning on entertaining some girl graduates. She will make a wise choice if she decides upon a lawn party with plenty of amusing games, including tennis, basketball, croquet, and even the old-fashioned game of horseshoe.

For the high school girls the entertainment, which should come to a close at a rather early hour of the evening, may come to a conclusion with dainty refreshments served on the veranda which has been gaily decorated with Japanese lanterns, flowers and bunting in their respective school colors.

For the college graduates the entertainment may be prolonged until a later hour, allowing time for dancing which begins after dark and which comes to a close with a supper served indoors.

DRUMS.

Out from the Caves of Shadows, out from the Forest's edge, Hearing what call of the spirit, led by what distant light,
Man, the marvel, looked upward,
making his silent pledge;
So was the army mustered, facing the age-long fight.

Never a path before them, always the way to make,
Needing a God to look to, calling upon
His Name;
Many the Names they called Him,
One Who would not forsake,
"Help of the helpless, hear us!" Always they meant the same.

3

Leaders they had and left them. Only this thing they knew,
Tested over and over, stamped on the heart of the race;
"Reasoning may deceive us, that which we feel is true."

And the drums of Faith and Courage home" and transforms it into a "pleasure room" instead. I wonder how many of you will follow her suggestions if not now then next Spring.

H H

The garden—how we've watched it grow, and lately, how we have been enjoying the fruits of our labor. The Home Economics Department of the Texas State College for Women (CIA) contributes some new recipes for variety in our vegetable dishes, and tells us to use the fresh vegetables freely. They sound good and should taste even better.

H H

But in the enjoyment of our garden let's not forget there are marauders of the insect type that can lay our garden in waste and change our delight to sorrow. Mrs. Frazier warns against slugs and snails and gives a solution for banishing them. Take warning and enjoy your garden to the last radish.

H H

Then everyone will be happy in the month of June—except, perhaps, the bugs!

THE WORKSHOP OF THE HOME.

By Mary Louise Frazier.

The kitchen has often been termed the "Workshop of the home" which is very true, although much of the dull, sordidness could be eliminated with little effort and expense.

If the kitchen is in good condition, but is drab for lack of color and harmony, the first point to consider is the color scheme.

A pale gray and rose with touches of medium green would lend a pleasant, cool spaciousness to the room.

Before papering and painting be sure that all the wood-work is thoroughly clean. If the kitchen has kalsomined walls and ceiling, then a soft gray kalsomine would be desirable, but if they are to be re-papered, then select a soft gray and green sanitary wall paper (the washable kind) as it will prove to be an attractive labor saver.

Paint the woodwork a darker shade of gray than the wall covering. If there is a molding that holds utensils or some shelves, or both, paint them gray too, except the three edges of the latter, which would be more entrancing if painted rose.

There are many beautifully pat-

Hail, oh majestic army! Proudly I fall in line, Thus shall my life have meaning, part of a glorious whole;

terned linoleums on the market that have gray background; rose the predominating color in the foreground with green, black and often white as finishing touches of harmony.

Such a linoleum will add so much cheerfulness to the kitchen that you will consider it a wise investment.

White voile curtains for the windows with rose ruffles drawn back by ruffled rose ties will furnish the "homely" atmosphere and soften any sharp contours of the room.

The ordinary brown flower pots in which dark pink geraniums have been planted may be given a coat of green with some of the left-over paint. These placed on a flower stand near the window will furnish untold charm.

A set of popular enameled kitchen ware in green will also do much towards bringing harmony into the kitchen.

When the renovation is complete you will find to your satisfaction that your kitchen is no longer a "workshop" but a "pleasure room" instead.

USE FRESH VEGETABLES.

Fresh uncooked vegetables are especially important and should be used freely. The green portions should be used more than most families use them as these are especially rich in iron and vitamines which are so essential to health.

There is no doubt that appearance has much to do with the attractiveness of foods. There are those which are bright colored, and white ones which are most popular. The rich brown probably ranks next in favor. A prominent food chemist ridiculed the popularity of tomatoes as only a color flavor appeal. Later he learned that they are one of our best sources of vitamines.

Another of our mineral and vitamine-containing foods is the pot-herb group, to which spinach, mustard, and turnip greens belong. Beets and carrots add health as well as color. Fresh peas have an infinitely better flavor than canned peas and the same can be said of many products.

Just now the garden is of special importance in keeping down food expenditures and at the same time giving variety. It provides profitable employment for many who otherwise might be unemployed.

In most of these localities the heavy meal is usually served at noon. It is with this in mind that these recipes are given:

WILTED LETTUCE: 1-2 c weak vinegar, 1-8 t salt, dash pepper, 2 t bacon fat. Method: Heat the ingredients until boiling hot and pour over the lettuce. If not wilted sufficiently the lettuce and dressing may be placed in a skillet and heated over a low fire. Serve at once.

TOMATO JELLY OR ASPIC: 1 qt. tomatoes stewed and strained; 1 t salt, 1 t sugar, gelatin. Method: Measure juice after straining. Allow 2 teaspoons gelatin to each cup. Soak gelatin in cold water 10 minutes, add to juice; bring to boiling point, pour into molds and chill. Serve with mayonnaise or boiled dressing.

POTATO AND SPINACH CROQUETTES: 2 c boiled Irish potatoes, 2 T butter, 1 egg, 1-4 c spinach, salt and pepper, bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 2 qt. fat for frying. Method: Mash hot boiled potatoes. Add butter, egg slightly beaten, and spinach finely chopped. Season with salt and pepper; shape, dip in crumbs, in eggs, and in crumbs again; fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper.

ARMY WORMS ON THE WAY.

Army worms may be abundant this year because of the late, wet spring and the early growth of grass and weeds, according to entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The little worms that hatch from eggs laid in grass and weeds grow so fast, from April to July, that they often destroy acres of pasture to spot the tiny greenish caterpillars feeding near the surface of the ground under the shelter of hanging leaf blades. When grain shows definite signs of damage from army worms, it is usually too late to do anything about it, and the army worm has become full grown and finished its season's work. Seldom, if ever, does it break out twice in the same year.

The best way to control the army worms, entomologists say, is to spray poisoned bran bait over the pasture area as soon as the minute caterpillars begin to crawl onto the leaves of the young grain.

QUIHI NOTES.

Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Math. 5:5.

Sundays impractical, ridiculous. Real life presents a different view. Those inheriting the earth, in part at least, are usually classed among the impulsive, domineering, headstrong, defiant and reckless. No compensation for them to push the other fellow aside and override his rights and his welfare. They have but icy contempt for the meek, the one who gives in, who suffers injustice and loss and chicanery, leaving the final judgment to the Judge Supreme. In the face of it all, the Lord puts his dictum. It's His spirit of meekness that holds a blessing, that inherits the earth, mentally and morally now, and more so when the roles are reversed on the "new earth". 2 Tim. 2:12.

EXPERIMENTS INDICATE POSSIBLE WASTE OF IRRIGATION WATER.

Increasing the number of irrigations of Bermuda onions, spinach and strawberries failed to increase yields at the Winter Garden Experiment Station in recent tests. Onions receiving 15 irrigations from the time they were set out until harvested yielded 168 bushels of No. 1 onions per acre as compared with 246 bushels from 5 irrigations during the past season. Results were similar in 1932. Increasing the number of irrigations at bulb-forming time gave some increase in yield.

Varying the number of irrigations of strawberries from 4 to 9 times for the period from November 6 to April 15 had no effect on the yield during the past season.

Tests on two crops of spinach during the past winter show that increasing the number of irrigations from 1 to 6 during the growing season failed to increase the yield.

The frequency of irrigation in the various treatments is based on the amount of accumulated evaporation from an open tank and varied from 3-4 inch to 2 1-2 inches.

Announcements for Sunday, June 25th: Service in German at New Fountain, 10:00 A. M. Service in English at 8 P. M. Sunday School at 9 A. M. Welcome!

I have sold many hundreds of bushels of fruit from a truck, but I always had some kind of superstition about a man who smokes a pipe. The average man will throw away a chew of tobacco to taste of fruit, or the man with a cigar or cigarette in his mouth will buy fruit but it seemed very seldom I could sell the fruit to a man smoking a pipe. The smoke cut off a pipe must kill the taste for fruit in some way or maybe the man who smokes a pipe just can't taste as well as the other fellow.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile—Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up."

They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute, 25¢ at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

The D'Hanis baseball club journeyed to LaCoste Sunday, where again in stride, the Pirates handed the Boosters of that town a 7 to 2 defeat. This was the 12th victory out of 14 games played. The Pirates bunched hits off Jim Biediger and, with some daring base running, made all their hits count. The Boosters hit Langfeld freely, but were unable to bunch hits to the best advantage and some clever fielding by the Pirate infield cut off several potential runs. Next Sunday the Pirates play Devine at Devine.

LAKE CHARLES GIRLS MAKE TRIP ON SS. STELLA LYKES FROM ORANGE TO HOME DOCKS.

Going out in a motor boat on the canal at Orange, Texas, to meet the Ss. Stella Lykes, drawing up alongside her while in motion and boarding her by means of a rope ladder, taking a trip on her which included 22 miles of the straightest canal in the world, meanwhile making a visit of inspection to every part of the ship, having lunch with the captain and his wife, and finally landing at the home docks, at Lake Charles, was the thrilling experience of two Lake Charles girls, Helen and Mary Clooney, and their guest, Cornelia Koch, of D'Hanis, Texas.

The girls say it was a great morning. They had a lot of fun. They have written the following account of their experiences, beginning with their rather difficult boarding of the ship.

The first two hours were spent in taking pictures of the ship from all angles and also taking snapshots of one another and of the ship's officers, including Captain K. D. Henderson and his wife, who were our charming host and hostess while aboard the ship.

By special favor of the captain we were invited to accompany him on a journey through the engine room to learn some of the whys and wherefores of the ship's mechanisms.

How an engineer on a steamship must enjoy the good old fresh air whenever he leaves his post to inhale a whiff of it. Our trip started down a steep stairs which took us past the motors and condensers and on through the boiler room which is the nearest to an inferno anybody could wish for. We were also shown the room where hundreds of wrenches, bits and other tools are kept in readiness for the ever-watchful engineer.

From here we were led through the shaft alley and refrigeration compartment, a cool place compared to the boiler room.

Here we were given the choice of retracing our steps through the engine rooms or climbing the hatch which is used only as a means of escape if the ship is sinking or has caught fire. After one terrified look up the hatch, which resembles a ventilating pipe with a ladder in it, we steadied our shaky knees and thumping hearts and began our climb up the forty rungs.

What relief to see the good old daylight! We came out in the ship's gallery and from there were taken through the crew's quarters, all kept in the strictest cleanliness. Now, out on deck again and then up to the monkey bridge and through the pilot's house. We stayed only a few minutes here because we were near Lake Charles and were preparing to dock.

Being thoroughly exhausted but happy we were taken to the captain's quarters and served some delicious ginger ale by that most congenial man, the captain himself. Before leaving the ship we had lunch aboard by special invitation from the captain and prepared personally by the steward.

With a huge store of memories and a secure feeling of newly acquired wisdom, we left the ship calling it the end of a perfect morning.

The above is from "The Lake Charles American Press". Miss Conelia Koch, during her recent visit in Louisiana also went through the Avery salt mines, 550 feet underground near New Iberia. Another interesting experience was the visit to St. Martinsville to see the Evangeline statue, also Evangeline's grave and statue which are behind St. Martin's church built in 1765.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude to my friends and neighbors for the kind assistance and words of consolation in the death of my beloved brother, Tom, and for the many beautiful floral offerings. I especially wish to thank Rev. R. W. Merrill for the consoling services and words of comfort and his choir for the beautiful songs.

You will always be remembered.

Gratefully yours,

FOSTER WATSON.

This will be the finest season of all for finding out what fruits stand the cold the better; however, it seems we have an entire new deal as to seasons. Four years ago if any one had asked me what was the most profitable fruit that could be planted I would have said pears and have placed Keiffer at the head of the list. But for three years now we have not had a Keiffer pear and to cap it all this season lots of the trees are killed. The pine-apple pear trees are killed to the ground. Big trees twenty years old. The Dixie trees are not killed but all pears are gone off of them. If it were not for the blight I believe I would now plant the Bartlett pear. However, the blight is not showing up this year. I hope we will not have any more blizzards after a warm spell but we cannot afford to keep a pear orchard forever without getting any fruit. Many of our trees are hurt so badly they will never recover. I understand that the pear crop escaped many places in East Texas. That will be the place to set pear trees.

We do job printing.

BEWARE OF RATS.

Typhus fever or Fourteen day fever is quite prevalent in Texas, according to Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. He stated, "Typhus fever is of two forms, the epidemic and the endemic. It is the latter form that is most commonly found in Texas and it differs from the epidemic form in that it has a low mortality. The disease is often confused with others and for that reason many cases are not reported as such; it is also called rat fever and mouse fever.

The attendants entered slowly to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March in the following order: Miss Viola Uhl and August Wurzbach, Miss Tusnelda Wurzbach and Milton Stolte, and Miss Elvina Stolte, maid of honor, preceded the bride, who entered with her father, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Herbert Wurzbach. The choir rendered two pretty selections and a vocal duet was sung by Miss Renata Wurzbach and Mrs. C. C. Bippert, preceding the ceremony. Mrs. K. Konzack played the wedding music.

The symptoms of typhus fever are that the onset is usually sudden with chills, fever, headache, prostration and body pains, the fever rises rapidly and reaches its maximum on the fifth to eighth day, this usually terminates on the tenth to fourteenth day by crisis and the recovery is rapid thereafter. An eruption accompanies this disease, starting on the chest and lower neck and becoming general in a few days. Bronchitis and the hacking cough are present in most cases and tend to confuse the diagnosis with respiratory infection or influenza.

The rat flea which feeds on the rat sick with typhus fever transmits the disease to humans, therefore, rats and mice should be exterminated as the most important control measure in the prevention of this disease.

Bodylice and rat mites may also transmit typhus fever. Persons that are sick should be isolated during their illness. All cases should be reported promptly to the health authorities in order that control measures may be started at once."

The bride was lovely in a gown of georgette made along princess lines.

The upper part of the bodice was fashioned from net, outlined in seed pearls. The net sleeves were made into a double puff. The veil of bridal tulle was caught at the back of the head, and held by a band of orange blossoms. A shower bouquet of lovely roses and lace fern was carried.

The bride's attendants wore gowns of crinkle crepe made form-fitting and the skirt made to flare. Lovely
